“ It's not very often where I find myself at a loss for words. I usually have plenty to say, sometimes even too much ! And , yet, somehow this loss has taken away my ability to speak. I have a web of emotions going through me and yet, I don't have the strength to craft them into words. So here I go... I want to start with a grateful heart and thank you for the quality of love and life you gave my husband. Because of your example as a great husband and father he followed in your footsteps and I was blessed to have married him. One story that is engraved in my heart that I was told by your son was the one of Christmas Eve. He told me Mema had bought you a new coat for Christmas. The whole family was on its way to midnight mass when you saw a homeless man with no coat walking and freezing in the middle of the night . You then stopped the car, got out and gave this man your new coat without a second thought . What a kind and selfless action that was but then again that is who you were . I enjoyed the moments we spent together anytime we got together. Your jokes always made me laugh, and your smile always warmed up my heart. You treated me as your own and every time before I would leave you would bless me and gave me the warmest hugs. . Each and every time I left I felt happier, peaceful and loved . One thing I will never forget is how much you loved your chocolates . You had such a sweet tooth especially for chocolate and no matter how hard Mema hid them from you, you always managed to find them and sometimes with my help. (Guilty!) As a Father-in-law and father figure your absence left a deep wound in my heart. It is sad to feel that you are no more with us on earth, but your love and peaceful memories will be my guide. I love you and I always will. Lisa Navarro

“ Growing up throughout the years I was always around Tito and he would always teach me one thing to another and to this day he has inspired me to become the man I am today! Even though I wasn't the best at speaking Spanish Tito always found a way to speak to me and make me smile. I cannot explain my emotions for how much I will miss him but I am glad that he will be by our sides everywhere we go. He was always my campeon my number one supporter and never failed to give the family what was needed and I am proud that he is my grandfather and I will miss him everyday

“ I will always remember the day when Rosie and I were painting our first home, and Rosie had picked a pretty unusual color for our home. Rosie and I had spent 3 full days painting our little home and Rosie's Dad (Ignacio) stopped by to see the newly painted home. He walked up to us with his big smile and told us how he loved the color and how it stood out in comparison to the other homes, but the truth was that the color of the house was all wrong and Rosie and I knew that we had wasted the 3 whole days that we had spent painting and that we had to paint it over. But that is how Ignacio was, he would always find the right words to comfort his daughter and he always left you with the feeling that no matter how bad the situation seemed, things would turn out okay. Always, after talking to Ignacio, I would feel empowered and that's the way Ignacio made people feel after talking to him. Ignacio made me realize that life is always good, no matter how grim your circumstances

“ about 30 years ago, Rosie (Ignacio's youngest daughter) and I were painting our house and after 3 days of painting, Rosie and I realized that we had picked the wrong color and that our little home stood out like a sore thumb. Ignacio stopped by and came over to talk with Rosie and I, Rosie was almost in tears over the appearance of our home, but Ignacio with his positive outlook and his special way of cheering up his daughter, told Rosie that the house looked beautiful and that the unique color just made the house stand out, the same way that Rosie's beauty made her stand out. That's the way Ignacio would make you feel whenever you spoke with him. I would always leave after talking to Ignacio believing that I could do anything because Ignacio was a "can do" type of guy. Nothing was impossible with Ignacio and whenever I was with him, I was in love with life because Ignacio was in love with life, and that Ignacio believed that every day was a gift to be enjoyed.

I do know that you are no longer suffering or in pain and that gives me the peace of mind that you are in a better place in heaven with God. “ Growing up, and still to this day, I was the biggest Grandpa's Girl. Tito and I would go on daily errands together to the store, the bank - you name it! When we went to La Chiquita, he would show me what meats to get, make sure arrachera was ran through the machine and before we left he always bought me a churro. When Colonial Drugs was still around, he would go and pick up the prescriptions and drop off the mail. We went so often the staff knew him by name. He'd let me go up and down the isles and look at things. Every now and then if I stayed glued to an item, I may get a special treat, but I knew I'd leave with a candy, which usually was the candy cigarettes because I wanted to be just like my Tito. Tito also had me write his checks and balance his checkbook at a young age. Early on he taught me to be smart, act and be at your best. I'll always remember how dapper Mema and Tito always looked. They are my inspiration. There is no one else who can fill his shoes. I love more than I can express and words cannot do justice. I know he is watching over us all. His life is one to be celebrated and I know with certainty he would want us to be happy, rejoice with each other, and most of all continue to pray. So Tito, while I pray for you, I know God has welcomed you with open arms. I love you now and forever.

“ Grandparents are special ... they're a link to a distant past and a warm and fuzzy, humorous and loving presence in the now. Grandparents are especially "special" to us grandchildren, for they are a representation of simpler happy and loving moments and are akin to having another set of parents excepting the spanks and reprimands. My condolences to the family for their loss. I knew him not but I know and feel what he must have meant to all that he touched and those that loved him dearly. His eyes and his smile says volumes.
