“ I am very sorry to see the passing of Marion. Not only did she have 10 kids, she had room to take care of others whose mothers were working; providing safety and comfort. I was one of those lucky children. Marion was one of the most sincerely spiritual person I have ever known, and the world was definitely better for having her in it.

“ My grandmother was an strong, generous, amazing woman. She was a fighter till the end, just how she was in life to me, a fighter. Since I was a little girl I've looked up to her for her constant hospitality, her attentiveness to my grandfather and of course the little things that ment so much to me as a kid. She made the BEST cheese sandwiches for me, it was her bread and the way she cut it that made it so good. Also her peach tea she made me. My grandma was a master at multitasking, having 10 children definitely trained her to be good at it. She was an awesome baker, she loved knitting blankets, scarfs, you name it. One of her favorite things to do was to sit in the living room and knit, with a fresh bowl of popcorn next to her watching Her Cubbies. This woman taught me how to sew, knit, whistle although I couldnt pick it up, and that the Cubbies were the only team to root for. Grandma had a blue Pontiac Bonneville and man oh man did she have a lead foot. She passed our house to go to Annunication mass and all you saw was a blue streak passing by the house. My mom said that's where I got my lead foot from. ;) This was a woman who always had a task to do and could not sit still, I guess I got that from her too. She was very tough, she taught me to respect others but also to respect myself and make time for me...and my hobbies. My sweet grandmother suffered from Alzheimers the last 10 years of her life. When I would visit her she didnt know who I was, but she always gave me her sweet smile . Visiting her was harder for me but it didnt stop me. I loved her as much as I did when I was a child. The disease might of taken her mind but didnt take her presence from me. These memories of her are all so vivid & fresh in my head, thinking of her always makes me smile. I hope she visits me in my dreams, I will be looking for her.

Love your Granddaughter,
Elizabeth
