“ *My Loving Brother Bay,
My brother was full of jokes and laughter, Always looking out for everyone around him. My heart will ache forever, Nothing here will ever be the same with out him.*

*Thank You Jesus for all you did for my brother when he was here on earth, and for making him the man he was. He now is in your hands
Dear Jesus may you lay him down to rest.*

Bay I love you with all my heart, But I know you knew that because I always told you.

Rest in peace Bay "Love you"

From your sister Nancy and Brother inlaw Claudio Juarez

“ My Tio Bay,

A loving uncle, a very very funny man, and so talented on his saxophone. I will miss you so much and I'm glad your no longer suffering. I love you always, and thank you for always taking care of me as if I was your own when I was in your care.

Love your niece, Sophia Fuentes

And to my cousins: Monica, Anthony, Silvestre III, Micheal, Jessie, and Julian

I love you all!

I wrote a poem for the loss of my Grandma and would like to share it with all of you and to who ever reads this. I hope it gives comfort to you.

God's ways aren't our ways. His plans surpass all our understanding. Instead of trying to seek a logical explanation on why people have to die ... it doesn't even make sense to even try to have understanding.

There is no logical, human answer. Only God knows why people are given that cross. Someday, when your face to face with God, you might be given the wisdom to understand. But for now, it's beyond you. And you have to learn to accept without understanding. And once you do accept that, You will start to hear God's voice again. You can't expect to hear God, if your angry, and have questions on why he takes the people we love away from us. That will only blind you to his presence. A person can't reconnect with a loveing God when you heart is filled with rage.

So, You just have to let it go. And when you do, and replace it with love instead, then God will be waiting to welcome you back. It dosen't mean it will be smooth sailing after that. Some days will be rougher than others. But over time it will get better.

The sorrow over the loss will always be with you. But, at least it's easier to bear with God by your side.
