“ Jasper, my heartfelt condolences on the passing of your mother, Vera Sue. She and I knew each other when we were in elementary school and she spent a few hours at our house after school each day until your grandmother got home from work. We became good friends through this, and I recall her being very bright and funny and creative with a warm, generous heart.

Through the years our paths diverged and I saw very little of her; I'm surprised to read that we attended the same college, Columbia in Chicago. I feel sad we never were able to reconnect. Your mother was a dear and true friend to me early in our lives; may her memory be a blessing to you.
