“ Vivian hired me to work summers at Sears when I was a freshman in college (mid-late '60s). What a beautiful, gracious, intelligent and kind woman she was. Not only did she hire me as a bookkeeper for the summers (I was an accounting major when I applied for the job.), but she offered me the opportunity to work in departments as needed when home from college on breaks. She also encouraged me to join the Sears management program upon graduation. However, I took a different path and went into commercial art; then following another degree ... into marketing communications. Vivian inspired all those who knew her - especially me. She set a fine example of an honest and professional businesswoman. I have often thought of her through the years. And now as a Marketing Communications Manager at RR Donnelley, I can still remember her as an example to follow. She was especially proud of Barbara and her family. And she loved the fact that I graduated from high school with her then future son-in-law, Bill. You have a great lady to remember, who most certainly lived a full and good life.
